VENUS will be Evening Star till the 14th day of October; thence Morning Star to the end of the year.

Anaximander, a disciple of Thales, first asserted that the moon borrows her light from the sun. He constructed spheres, made sun-dials, laid down geographical maps, and was acquainted with the obliquity of the ecliptic. He was born at Miletus, about the year before Christ, 550.

John Kepler, astronomer to the Emperor Rodolphus, may be regarded with reason as the restorer of modern astronomy. It was he who first gave the true theory of vision, as well as of the flux and reflux of the sea. He thought of ellipses for the orbits of the celestial bodies, and accounted for the motion of the universe by the law of gravity, which † Georgetown is at the mouth of Kennebeck River, and naturally lies in three divisions. The Peninsula, or Neck, called Small Point, is on the west side, and on the main, and contains about half the land and population. Arouseag Island contains about 20,000 acres, or one quarter of the land and inhabitants, and the meeting-house. Roskoe-gan, or Parker's Island, contains the other quarter, or about 28,000 acres. Stage-Island contains about 6 acres.

Summary of the Method of Treatment, to be used with Persons apparently dead from Drowning, &c.

CONVEY the person to the nearest convenient house, with his head raised : Strip and dry him as quick as possible ; clean the mouth and nostrils from froth and mud—If a child, let him be placed between two persons, naked, in a hot bed—If an adult, lay him on a hot blanket or bed, and, in cold weather, near a fire—in warm weather, the air should be freely admitted into the room. The body is next to be gently rubbed with warm woollen cloths, sprinkled with spirits, if at hand, otherwise dry. A heated warming-pan may be now lightly moved over the back, properly covered with a blanket ; and the body, if of a child, is to be gently shook every few minutes : Whilst these means are using, one or two assistants are to be employed in blowing up tobacco-smoke into the fundament, with the instrument provided for the purpose, or a tobacco-pipe, if that cannot be had—the bowl filled with tobacco and properly lighted, being covered with a handkerchief, or piece of linen, so as to defend the mouth of the assistant in blowing : Bathe the breast with hot rum, and persist in the use of these means for several hours. If no signs of life should then appear, let the body be kept warm several hours longer, with hot bricks, or vessels of hot water, applied to the palms of the hand, and soles of the feet, for a longer or shorter time, as the circumstances of the case may be.

The too customary method of rolling on a barrel, suspending by the feet, and every other violent mode of agitation, particularly in removing the body from the water, should be most carefully avoided.

The above mentioned method of treatment is to be made use of with vigour for several hours, although no favourable circumstances should arise ; for it is a vulgar and dangerous opinion, to suppose persons are irrecoverable, because life does not soon make its appearance ; and upon this opinion, an immense number of the seemingly dead have been committed to the grave, who might have been restored to life by resolution and perseverance in the above plan of treatment.

This Society consists of such as have actually navigated the seas near or beyond the Cape of Good Hope, or round Cape-Horn, as masters or commanders of vessels, and such as have been factors, or supercargoes of vessels, employed in the East-India trade. It was instituted for the purpose of collecting together such observations, discoveries, books, papers, charts, and valuable publications in every language, as might tend to facilitate the navigation of the Eastern and Southern Oceans. Every member returning from sea, is bound to present to the Society an abstract of the journal of his voyage, and to communicate in writing his observations of the bearings and distances of all capes and headlands; the latitude and longitude of islands, rocks and shoals; unusual occurrences; storms and accidents; with all other observations, which he may judge useful to be recorded. The Museum of the Society already exhibits a handsome collection of curiosities.

The Dispensary is kept at the Sign of the Good Samaritan, No. 13, Cornhill.

The above Institution, though yet in its infancy, has afforded the means of relief to many necessitous persons, among others, whose feelings would have been hurt by an application for assistance from the Alms-House; as they are, by this charity, attended, free of any expense, by an able Physician, either at their own houses, or at the Dispensary, as the case may require, and furnished with whatever medicine they may need, and with wine, if necessary.

CONVENTION

Of the CONGREGATIONAL MINISTERS in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

THEIR Meeting is held in Boston, in the afternoon of the last Wednesday in May (or day of Election) annually; and on the following day at noon, after transacting the usual business of Convention, a sermon is delivered in public before them, and a collection made for the charitable purpose of relieving the indigent widows of deceased Clergymen.

The Rev. Thomas Prentiss, of Medfield, is chosen to deliver the Convention Sermon in May, 1803: but, in case of failure, the Rev. Dr. Emmons, of Franklin, is to officiate in his stead.

The Convention is a voluntary Association, embracing all the Congregational Clergy of the Commonwealth, and vested with no particular authority or control over the Churches. They have opened a friendly correspondence with the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, in the Middle and Southern States, and with the representative bodies of the Congregational Ministers in Connecticut, New-Hampshire and Vermont, for the purposes of communicating and receiving from them whatever may tend to promote the common interest of Christianity.

A Standing Committee of Convention have been appointed for the purpose of certifying the good character and qualifications of Ministers and Candidates who may travel into other States; and an agreement has been entered into between the Convention and the other representative bodies of Ministers in other States, mutually to communicate the names of their Committees for this purpose. Every certificate must be signed by one gentleman at least of that Committee, from whose bounds the person recommended travels.

The Committee in MASSACHUSETTS consists of the following Gentlemen—viz.

Rev.	Rev.
Joseph Willard, D.D. & L.L.D.	John Lathrop, D.D. Boston
President of Harvard University, Cambridge	Jed. Morse, D.D. Charlestown
Step. West, D.D. Stockbridge	Jason Haven, Dedham
Seth Swift, Williamston	Ezra Weld, Braintree

Peter Thacher, D.D. Boston	Samuel Deane, D.D. Portland
	M. Hemmenway, D.D. Wells

John T. Kirkland, D.D. Scribe of the Convention.

The Convention “earnestly recommend to all young gentlemen, who design to devote themselves to the work of the ministry, to spend that portion of time in the study of divinity, which improved and judicious advisers shall think necessary to qualify them for public teachers.”

The Congregational Ministers throughout the Commonwealth, with some exceptions, are associated, and have regular and stated meetings for fellowship and mutual improvement. The Convention have passed a vote, requesting the Moderator or Scribe of the several Associations throughout the Commonwealth, to forward to the Scribe of the Conven-ion, a correct list of the members of their respective Associations, with the name of the Scribe of each, and of the Candidates licensed by them; and have directed that the Scribe of the Convention procure the insertion of the several lists in the Massachusetts Register.

The Convention, solicitous to collect and preserve accurate documents for a History of their Churches, have passed a vote, that each of the Congregational Ministers in Massachusetts be requested to compile a history of his own Church, and of those in his vicinity which may happen to be vacant, and to make returns to the Scribe of the Convention. It is hoped, this important request will not pass unnoticed, but be productive of great good.

Josiah Ayres,	}	Pilots for the Outward Division the Port and Harbour of Boston.
Thomas Barnard,
Nathaniel B. Lyde,
Lemuel Ayres,

By a late Law of this Commonwealth, the pilotage the harbour of Boston is formed into two divisions, Outward and Inward. The outward division consists of four branches; and the inward division consists of three branches. And no person so commissioned as a pilot, or his deputy shall undertake to bring in or carry out of said harbour any vessel drawing nine feet of water, (coasters and fishing-vessels excepted) except in his own particular branch, under the penalty of fifty dollars.

The Governor and Council determine and fix the fees of pilotage of the several pilots for the harbour of Boston, from time to time, having respect to the different risk and hazard of the inward and outward divisions, and according as the circumstances of peace or war, and the seasons of the year may severally require; and the same to be specified on the respective warrants. A schedule of their fees to be hung up in the Custom-House for the port of Boston and Charlestown, for public inspection and information.

A NEW COMET.

ON the 28th of August, 1802, about 9 in the evening, Citizen Mechain, Member of the French National Institute and of the Board of Longitude, discovered a new Comet in the constellation of Serpentarius. It was a few degrees below the two nebulous spots which are on the left side of that figure, and near the equator. He ascertained its position, and found that it was rapidly ascending towards the north. It continued obscure the following days. The light of this star did not appear to receive any sensible augmentation. Its nucleus does not become more luminous; nor does the nebulosity which surrounds it acquire great extent. The following are the first and last observations which Citizen Mechain communicated to the National Institute, on the 2d September. Mean time, 9 hours, 24 min. 6 sec. Right ascension, 340 deg. 18 min. S. Declension, 6 deg. 11 min. 31 sec. From the present position of this Comet, it may be remarked, that its distance from the Sun is necessarily greater than that of the Sun from the Earth. It ascends towards the North Pole, following the left side of Serpentarius, and the opposite side of the Hercules. Though visible only with a telescope, it may be observed for a pretty long period, if its lights do not suffer any diminution.

General Information respecting Probate Business

AN Executor should notify the heirs, or persons interested in a will, of the day he intends to offer it for probate, that they may have opportunity to contest the probate thereof, if they see cause : otherwise the Judge may be obliged to postpone proving the will, and to cite the heirs. An executor, knowing of his appointment, must cause the will to be proved within thirty days after the death of the testator, or present the said will to the Probate Court, and in writing declare his refusal : otherwise he may be subjected to a heavy fine. When a person dies intestate, the widow, or next of kin to the deceased, (if of age) should, within thirty days, take out a letter of administration, or in writing decline the trust. Guardians must be appointed for minors, before the estate is distributed, and before the account of administration is allowed. When executors and administrators are prepared to exhibit their accounts of administration to the Judge for allowance, they should invariably notify the persons interested therein, or their guardians to be present in Court at the examination thereof ; unless the heirs and guardians will previously examine the accounts to be exhibited, and will certify thereon their approbation of it. This method may save much trouble and expense. The same steps should be taken with creditors, when an estate is insolvent : that is, they must be notified as aforesaid, or they must certify as aforesaid. Administrators who will not to account with the Judge of Probate for the personal estate of the deceased, as the same shall be appraised, should give notice thereof, at the time they return the inventory and then obtain an order for the sale of the whole, or such part thereof, as the Judge shall direct ; and the heirs also, if they apprehend the personal estate is appraised too low, should represent the same to the Judge, and request to have it sold at public auction, or at private sale, as will best serve the interest of all persons concerned.

[The following valuable communication has been lately published by the HUMANE SOCIETY. Though it relates more immediately to one class of citizens ; yet, when we take into view the benefits which result to each class from Navigation, and the importance of affording every direction and assistance to Seamen, it is presumed its insertion in the Register will be considered by the judicious as aiding the cause of humanity, and tending to the public good.]

A Description of the Eastern Coast of the County of Barnstable, from Cape-Cod, or Race-Point, in lat. $42^{\circ} 5'$, to Cape-Malebarre, or the Sandy Point of Chatham, in lat. $41^{\circ} 33'$; pointing out the Spots on which the Trustees of the Humane Society have erected Huts, and other Places where shipwrecked Seamen may look for Shelter. By a Member of the Humane Society.

THE curvature of the shore, on the west side of Provincetown, and south of Race-Point, is called Herring-Cove, which is three miles in length. There is good anchoring ground here ; and vessels may ride safely in four or five fathoms of water, when the wind is from north-east to south-east.

On Race-Point stand about a dozen fishing-huts, containing fire-places and other conveniences. The distance from these huts to Provincetown, which lies on Cape-Cod harbour, is three miles. The passage is over a sandy beach, without grass or any other vegetable growing on it, to the woods, through which is a winding road to the town. It would be difficult, if not impossible, for a stranger to find his way thither in the dark ; and the woods are so full of ponds and entangling swamps, that if the road was missed, destruction would probably be the consequence of attempting to penetrate them in the night.

Not far from Race-Point commences a ridge, which extends to the head of Stout's Creek. With the face to the east, on the left hand of the ridge is the sandy shore ; on the right is a narrow sandy valley ; beyond which is naked sand, reaching to the hills and woods of Provincetown. This ridge is well covered with beach grass ; and appears to owe its existence to that vegetable. Beach grass, during the spring and summer, grows about two feet and a half. If Surrounded by naked beach, the storms of autumn and winter heap up the sand on all sides, and cause it to rise nearly to the top of the plant. In the ensuing spring, the grass sprouts anew ; is again covered with sand in the winter ; and thus a hill or ridge continues to ascend, as long as there is a sufficient base to support it, or till the circumscribing sand, being also covered with beach grass, will no longer yield to the force of the winds.

On this ridge, half way between Race-Point and the head of Stout's Creek, the Trustees of the Humane Society have erected a hut. It stands a mile from Peaked Hill, a landmark well known to seamen, and is about two miles and a half from Race-Point. Seamen, cast away on this part of the coast, will find a shelter here ; and in north-east storms, should they strike to the leeward of it, and be unable to turn their faces to the windward, by passing on to Race-Point, they will soon come to the fishing-huts before mentioned.

At the head of Stout's Creek the Trustees have built a second hut. Stout's Creek is a small branch of East-Harbour in Truro. Many years ago there was a body of salt marsh on it ; and it then deserved the name of a creek : but the marsh was long since destroyed ; and the creek now scarcely exists, appearing only like a small depression in the sand, and being entirely dry at half tide. The creek runs from north-west to south-east, and is nearly parallel with the shore on the ocean, from which it is at no great distance. Not far from it, the hills of Provincetown terminate ; and should not the hut be found, by walking round the head of the creek, with the face to the west, the hills on the right hand, and keeping close to the shore on the harbour, in less than an hour the shipwrecked seamen would come to Provincetown.

The Humane Society, several years ago, erected a hut at the head of Stout's Creek : but it was built in an improper manner, having a chimney in it ; and was placed on a spot where no beach grass grew. The strong winds blew the sand from its foundation, and the weight of the chimney brought it to the ground ; so that in January of the present year, it was entirely demolished. This event took place about six weeks before the Brutus was cast away. If it had remained, it is probable that the whole of the unfortunate crew of that ship would have been saved, as they gained the shore a few rods only from the spot where the hut had stood.

The hut now erected stands on a place covered with beach grass. To prevent any accident from happening to it, or to the other hut near Peaked Hill, the Trustees have secured the attention of several gentlemen in the neighbourhood. Dr. Thaddeus Brown, and Capt. Thomas Smalley, of Provincetown, have engaged to inspect both huts, to see that they are supplied with straw or hay in the autumn, that the doors and windows are kept shut, and that repairs are made, when necessary. The Rev. Mr. Damon, of Truro, has also promised to visit the hut at Stout's Creek twice or thrice in a year ; and the Rev. Mr. Whitman, of Wellfleet, distinguished through the county for his activity and benevolence, has undertaken, though remote from the place, the same charge.

From the head of Stout's Creek to the termination of the salt marsh, which lies on both sides, and at the head of East-Harbour River, the distance is about three miles and a half. A narrow beach separates this river from the ocean. It is not so regular a ridge as that before described, as there are on it one or two hills, which the neighbouring inhabitants call Islands. It may, without much difficulty, be crossed every where, except over these elevations. By these hills, even during the night, the beach may be distinguished from those hereafter to be mentioned. It lies from north-west to south-east, and is in most parts covered with beach grass. The hills have a few shrubs on the declivities next the river. At the end of the marsh the beach subsides a little ; and there is an easy passage into a valley, in which are situated two or three dwelling-houses. The first on the left hand, or south, is a few rods only from the ocean.

The shore, which extends from this valley to Race-Point, is unquestionably the part of the coast the most exposed to shipwrecks. A north-east storm, the most violent and fatal to seamen, as it is frequently accompanied with snow, blows directly on the land : a strong current sets along the shore : add to which, that ships, during the operation of such a storm, endeavour to work to the northward, that they may get into the bay. Should they be unable to weather Race-Point, the wind drives them on the shore, and a shipwreck is inevitable. Accordingly, the strand is every where covered with the fragments of vessels. Huts, therefore, placed within a mile of each other, have been thought necessary by many judicious persons. To this opinion the Trustees are disposed to pay due respect ; and hereafter, if the funds of the Society increase, new huts will be built here for the relief of the unfortunate.

From the valley above mentioned the land rises, and less than a mile from it the High-Land commences. On the first elevated spot, the Clay-Pounds, stands the light-house. The shore here turns to the south ; and the High-Land extends to the Table-Land of Eastham. This High-Land approaches the ocean with steep and lofty banks, which it is extremely difficult to climb, especially in a storm. In violent tempests, during very high tides, the sea breaks against the foot of them, rendering it then unsafe to walk on the strand, which lies between them and the ocean. Should the seaman succeed in his attempt to ascend them, he must forbear to penetrate into the country, as houses are generally so remote, that they would escape his research during the night : he must pass on to the vallies, by which the banks are intersected. These vallies, which the inhabitants call Hollows, run at right angles with the shore ; and in the middle, or lowest part of them, a road leads from the dwelling-houses to the sea.

The first of these vallies is Dyer's Hollow, a mile and a half south of the light-house. It is a wide opening, being two hundred rods broad from summit to summit. In it stands a dwelling-house, a quarter of a mile from the beach.

A mile and a half south of Dyer's Hollow, is a second valley, called Harding's Hollow. At the entrance of this valley, the sand has gathered ; so that at present a little climbing is necessary. Passing over several fences, and taking heed not to enter the wood on the right hand, at the distance of three quarters of a mile, a house is to be found. This house stands on the south side of the road ; and not far from it, on the south, is Pamet River, which runs from east to west through a body of salt marsh.

The third valley, a half of a mile south of Harding's Hollow, is Head of Pamet-Hollow. It may with ease be distinguished from the other hollows mentioned, as it is a wide opening, and leads immediately over a beach to the salt marsh at the head of Pamet-River. In the midst of the hollow, the sand has been raised by a brush fence, carried across it from north to south. This must be passed ; and the shipwrecked mariner will soon come to a fence, which separates what is called the Road from the Marsh. If he turns to the left hand, or south, at the distance of a quarter of a mile, he will discover a house. If he turns to the right and, at the distance of half a mile, he will find the same cove which is mentioned in the foregoing paragraph.

The fourth opening, three quarters of a mile south of Head of Pamet, is Brush-Valley. This hollow is narrow, and climbing is necessary. Entering it, and inclining to the right, three quarters of a mile will bring seamen to the cove, which is situated at the Head of Pamet. By proceeding straight forward, and passing over rising ground, another cove may be discovered, but with more difficulty.

These three hollows, lying near together, serve to designate each other. Either of them may be used ; but Head of Pamet-Hollow is the safest.

South of Brush-Valley, at the distance of three miles, there is a fifth opening, called Newcomb's Hollow, east of the head of Herring-River in Wellfleet. This valley is a quarter of a mile wide. On the north side of it, near the shore, stands a fishing-hut.

Between the two last vallies the bank is very high and deep. From the edge of it, west, there is a strip of sand, a hundred yards in breadth : then succeeds low brushwood, a quarter of a mile wide, and almost impassable ; after which comes a thick, perplexing forest, in which not a cove is to be discovered. Seamen, therefore, though the distance between these two vallies is great, must not attempt to enter the wood, as in a snow-storm they would undoubtedly perish. This place, so formidable in description, will, however, lose somewhat of its terror, when it is observed, that no instance of a shipwreck on this part of the coast is recollected by the oldest inhabitants of Wellfleet.

Half of a mile south of Newcomb's Hollow, is the sixth valley, called Pearce's Hollow. It is a small valley. A cove stands at the distance of a little more than a quarter of a mile from the beach, west by south.

The seventh valley is Cohoon's Hollow, a half of a mile south of Pearce's Hollow. It is not very wide. West from the entrance, several houses may be found, at the distance of a mile. This hollow lies east by north from Wellfleet meeting-house.

Two miles south of Cohoon's Hollow, the eighth valley, Snow's Hollow. It is smaller than the last. West from the shore, at the distance of a quarter of a mile, is the county road, which goes round the head of Black-Fish creek. Passing through this valley to the fence which separates the road from the upland and marsh at the head of the creek, a house will immediately be found, by turning to the right hand, or north. There are houses also to the left, but more remote.

The High-Land gradually subsides here, and a mile and a half south terminates at the ninth valley, called Fresh-Brook Hollow, in which a house is to be found a mile from the shore, west.

The tenth, two miles and a half south from Fresh-Brook Hollow, is Plum-Valley, about three hundred yards west. West is a house, three quarters of a mile distant.

Between these two vallies is the Table-Land.

After this, there is no hollow of importance, to Cape Malebarre.

From Fresh-Brook Hollow to the commencement of Naufet Beach, the bank next the ocean is about sixty feet high. There are houses scattered over the plain, of the country; but none of them are nearer than a mile to the shore. In a storm of wind and rain, they might be discerned by day-light; but in a snow-storm, which rages here with excessive fury, it would be almost impossible to discover them either by night or by day.

Not far from this shore, south, the Trustees have erected a third hut, on Naufet Beach. Naufet Beach begins in latitude $41^{\circ} 51'$, and extends south to latitude $41^{\circ} 41'$. It is divided into two parts by a breach, which the ocean has made through it. This breach is the mouth of Naufet Stage Harbour; and from the opening the beach extends north two miles and a quarter, till it joins the main land. It is about a furlong wide, and forms Naufet Harbour, which is of little value, its entrance being obstructed by a bar. This northern part of the beach may be distinguished from the southern part, by its being of a less regular form. Storms have made frequent irruptions through the ridge, on which the beach grass grows. On an elevated part of the beach stands the hut, about a mile and a half north of the mouth of Naufet Harbour. Eastham meeting-house lies from west south-west, distant a mile and three quarters. The meeting-house is without a steeple; but it may be distinguished from the dwelling-houses near it by its situation, which is between two small groves of locusts, one on the south, and one on the north, that on the south being three times as long as the other. About a mile and a quarter from the hut, west by north, appear the top and arms of a win-

11. The Rev. Mr. Shaw, and Elisha Mayo, Esq. of Chatham, have engaged to inspect this building.

The southern part of Nauset Beach, most commonly called Chatham Beach, and by a few persons Potanuniquet Beach, begins at the mouth of Nauset Harbour, and extends about nine miles south to the mouth of Chatham Harbour. It is about fifty rods wide. A regular, well formed ridge, which, in the most elevated part of it, is forty feet high, is the whole length of it; and, with the exception of a few spots, is covered with beach grass. This beach forms a barrier of Chatham Harbour, which from Strong Island north receives the name of Pleasant Bay. A mile south of the entrance of Nauset Harbour, it joins the main land of Orleans, except in very high tides, when the sea flows from the north-eastern arm of Pleasant Bay into the harbour of Nauset, completely insulating the beach. By those, who are acquainted with the shallow, it may be safely forded at low tide; but strangers must not venture to pass it, when covered with water; as below, the channel is seven feet deep. On this beach, about half way between the entrances of Nauset and Chatham Harbours, the Trustees have erected a meeting hut. The spot selected is a narrow part of the beach. To the west, the water adjoining it is called Bass Hole. To the east, the Marsh is north and south of it next the beach, but is frequently interrupted. Orleans meeting-house lies from it north-west. The meeting-house is without a steeple, and is not very high; but it is very near a windmill placed on an elevated point, and, a conspicuous object to seamen coming on the coast. It may be necessary to add, that there are three windmills on Orleans forming a semicircle; that the mill referred to, is on the right hand, or north-east point; and that the mill on the middle point of the semicircle stands on still higher ground. The meeting-house of Chatham is situated from it north-west. This meeting-house is also without a steeple, but is concealed by Great-Hill, a noted landmark. The hill appears with two summits, which are a quarter of a mile apart. The hut lies east from Sampson's Island in Pleasant Bay. Timothy Bascom, Esq. of Orleans, has undertaken to inspect this hut.

That seamen should miss this hut, by striking to the southward of it, the Trustees have erected another on the north beach. It stands a mile north of the mouth of Chatham Harbour, east of the meeting-house, and opposite the town.

Another spot on the same beach would be a proper situation for a hut. It is north of the fourth hut, and east of the middle of Pochet-Island. The highest part of the ridge is near it, south. A break in the ridge, over which the sea appears sometimes to have flowed, divides this high part from the northern portion of the beach.

On the beach of Cape-Malebarre, or the Sandy Point of Chatham, the Trustees have built a sixth hut. This beach stretches from Chatham, ten miles into the sea, toward Nantucket; and is from a quarter to three quarters of a mile breadth. It is continually gaining south: above three miles have been added to it during the past fifty years. On the east side of the beach is a curve in the shore, called Stewart's Bend, where vessels may anchor with safety, in three or four fathoms of water, when the wind blows from north to south-west. North of the Bend there are several banks and shoals. A little below the middle of the beach, on the west side, is Wreck-Cove, which is navigable for boats only. The hut stands two hundred yards from the ocean, south-east from the entrance of Wreck-Cove, a half of a mile. Between the mouth of the cove and hut, is Stewart's Knob, an elevated part of the beach. The distance of the hut from the commencement of the beach is six miles, and from its termination four. Great-Hill in Chatham bears north by west, distant six miles; and the south end of Morris Island, which is on the west side of the beach, north by east distant four miles. Richard Sears, Esq. of Chatham, has engaged to visit the two last mentioned huts.

Two miles below the sixth hut is a fishing-house, built of thatch, in the form of a wigwam. It stands on the west side of the beach, a quarter of a mile from the ocean. Annually in September it is renewed; and generally remains in tolerable preservation during the winter.

Another spot, a few rods from the sea, four miles south from the commencement of the beach, and a half of a mile north of the head of Wreck-Cove, would be a proper situation for a hut. A little south of this spot, in stormy and very high tides, the sea breaks over from the ocean into Wreck-Cove.

Cape-Malebarre beach may be distinguished from the two beaches before described, not only by its greater breadth but also by its being of a less regular form. It is not so well covered with grass as Chatham Beach. From Ste-art's Knoll, south, to the extremity, it is lowest in the middle. In this valley, and in other low places, fresh water may be obtained, by digging two feet into the sand. The same thing is true of Nauset and Chatham Beaches.

The six butts, the situation of which has thus been pointed out, are all of one size and shape. Each hut stands on piles, is eight feet long, eight feet wide, and seven feet high; a sliding door is on the south, a sliding shutter on the west, and a pole, rising fifteen feet above the top of the building, on the east. Within, it is supplied either with straw or hay; and is farther accommodated with a bench.

The whole of the coast, from Cape-Cod to Cape-Malebarre, is sandy, and free from rocks. Along the shore, at the distance of a half of a mile, is a bar; which is called the Outer Bar, because there are smaller bars within it, perpetually varying. This outer bar is separated into many parts by guzzles, or small channels. It extends to Chatham; and as it proceeds southward, gradually approaches the shore, and grows more shallow. Its general depth at high water is two fathoms, and three fathoms over the guzzles; and its least distance from the shore is about a furlong. Off the mouth of Chatham Harbour, there are bars which reach three quarters of a mile; and off the entrance of Nauset Harbour, the bars extend a half of a mile. Large, heavy ships strike on the outer bar, even at high water; and their fragments only reach the shore: but smaller vessels pass over it at full sea; and when they touch at low water, they beat over it, as the tide rises, and soon come to the land. If a vessel is cast away at low water, it ought to be left with as much expedition as possible; because the fury of the waves is then checked, in some measure, by the bar; and because the vessel is generally broken to pieces with the rising flood. But seamen, shipwrecked at full sea, ought to remain on board till near low water; for the vessel does not then break to pieces; and by attempting to reach the land before the tide ebbs away, they are in great danger of being drowned. On this subject there is one opinion only among judicious mariners. It may be necessary however to remind them of a truth, of which they have full conviction, but which, amidst the agitation and terror of a storm, they too frequently forget.

GENERAL INFORMATION.

The want of certificates of distilled spirits, wines or teas, subject such articles to seizure, and fifty dollars fine, if such certificates are not delivered to the purchaser; and if any cask, chest, vessel or case, containing such articles, shall be found in the possession of any person, without being marked, and not being accompanied with a certificate, the same is liable to seizure.

On the sale of any cask, &c. which has been marked, the marks to be defaced in presence of some officer of inspection or customs ; and the certificate of the same to be delivered up, under penalty of one hundred dollars, with costs of suit.

Goods from foreign ports, not to be unladen but between sun-rise and sun-set, without special license, under a penalty of four hundred dollars on the master, and every other person concerned, disability from holding any office under the government of the United States for seven years, and being advertised in the newspapers, with forfeiture of the goods ; and if above four hundred dollars, value of vessel and apparel.

Goods removed before gauged, and weighed, and if wine, spirits or teas, before being marked, without permission, are forfeited.

Persons giving or offering a bribe, forfeit from two hundred to two thousand dollars. Inspectors and officers of revenue cutters may go on-board, examine and search vessels, have access to the cabin, and seal packages ; and after securing hatches, &c. Persons in charge of vessels, for breaking fastenings, but in presence of an officer, forfeit two hundred dollars.

Officers may seize within or without their districts. Persons resisting or impeding them, forfeit four hundred dollars.

The master or commander of any vessel, that shall obstruct or hinder (or be the cause thereof) any officer of the revenue, in going on board his ship or vessel, for the purpose of carrying into effect any of the revenue laws of the United States, forfeits from fifty to five hundred dollars.

Every owner of a vessel, residing within the limits of the United States, to swear to the register within ninety days after its being granted, or it becomes void, and the vessel and cargo pays foreign tonnage and duty.

Returned Cargo.

(If any articles of an outward cargo are brought back, they are to be detailed, specified by whom shipped outward, and whom consigned inward.)

For the Information of Merchants in the District of Boston and Charlestown.

ALL bonds given on the exportation of merchandize, entitled to a drawback, must be put in suit as they become due, unless by prior application to the Comptroller, longer time shall be given to procure the necessary evidence that the merchandize exported was landed in a foreign port, captured or lost.

That no document of landing merchandize in a foreign port, entitled to a drawback, can be received, however regular, after the bond becomes due, unless satisfactory reasons are assigned for the delay.

That the exporter of all salted provisions and pickled fish, entitled to bounty, cannot claim it, unless the evidence of the delivery of the fish and provisions, in a foreign port, is tendered before his bond, given at the time of exportation, becomes due, excepting in those cases where satisfactory reasons are assigned for the delay, or a farther time granted by the Comptroller for obtaining evidence of the landing of the provisions or fish, in a foreign port.

That no debenture can be issued on the exportation of merchandize, unless the exporter shall, within ten days after the clearance of the vessel, complete those papers which the law makes necessary to his being entitled to a drawback.

Should any merchant in this district be conscious that he has bonds in the Custom-House, now due, given on the exportation of merchandize, or of pickled fish, or salted provisions, he will consider how interesting it is to him, to have them cancelled without farther delay.
